ARTS

Welding Art

Taught by Drew Nielsen. The cost is $125.

Have you always been curious about metal art and wondered if it was for you? In this combination beginning and intermediate level class we'll take your vision of a metal art object, whether it's a wall hanging, a tabletop piece, a garden object or an abstract sculpture and convert it into a real, steel object.

After you've determined your project design (either beginning or intermediate depending on your experience level), you'll begin by observing and then, with your instructor's guidance and supervision, you'll experience each step in the metal forming process: bending, cutting, welding, and grinding.

All equipment, tools, safety gear, protective clothing, and supplies for one small to medium sized art project are included in the cost of the class. NOTE: If you wish to build a larger sculpture, you will work with your instructor to determine the cost and source of additional materials. Your class fee includes two "open lab" dates that will be determined the first night of class.

Stamp-a-Stack

Taught by Elizabeth Pitzer. The cost is $39.

It's the season of greetings. Impress your friends with a series of handmade cards that will lift winter spirits. Materials and instruction will be provided for each student to create a "stack" of 10 winter greeting, thank you, or Christmas cards. Students will learn simple stamping and paper crafting techniques that can be easily applied to future projects. Hints and tips for producing multiple cards quickly will also be discussed. Each of the fifteen cards will be complete with an appropriate and simple inside, and a matching envelope—ready to sign and hand to a friend or to slip into the mail. Come join us and learn all about this fun craft.
